

Due to the interference that it would cause broadband over power lines should not be considered at all, there are numerous other methods of bringing broadband internet access into homes that does not interfere with licensed users of the HF spectrum.